

Review

Nic Cusa

Canada Free Press has published a hallucinatory article entitled “Progressive Satanic Revolt: From «Nothingness» to Worship of Satan”. The text is illogical, being a senseless mash of phrases and quotes, glued together for, it seems, the delight of that monkey mentioned so pompously in the title.

The only reason we wasted the time to read this is because the author quotes René Guénon, and mentions him in a seemingly superlative manner. We must say that such a cheap trick, where one’s name (with all that goes with it) is abused in a diabolical context is very characteristic for the shudra mentality. Such devices were actually used by the Communists in order to arrest, torture, set up sham trials, imprison and kill innocent people in Russia and the Eastern Europe, in the 20th century. But let us give some samples of this truly dubious enterprise:

“The Satanic revolt, like orthodox Christian faith is a movement of spirit having its taproot and energy in Satan, the father of lies and envy, the author of rebellion, and the revelator of secrets.” The Satanic revolt is a movement of spirit? Like the orthodox Christian faith? Satan revelator of secrets? This is actually the opening phrase of the article, and since the author has the delusion of exposing to the people the “Progressive Satanic Revolt”, the real source of this lame indictment becomes quite a revelation in itself. Anyhow, as we remarked already, the ostentatious tautophony from the title is quite a visible sign as to who’s pointing the finger here, and more importantly towards what. It is also interesting to observe that the tag line of the Canadian Free Press publication is “...Because without America there is no Free World”.

But the author makes other interesting observations:

“Satanic revolt is war against the Trinity. [...] Thus it proclaims the reign of nothingness, though a nothingness nevertheless pregnant with the expectation of fulfillment in the revelation, and finally the actual presence, of evil personified....the dark Lord of this world.” Hmmm. Good for us that America stands guard. And so, the “dark Lord of this world” is the child of nothingness. Therefore, according to the logic of the author, the bright lord of the next world would be the child of fullness. And one can find other serious and terrifying remarks: “The roots of Theosophy, hence of evolution, stretch back to the ancient Upanishads of India and to ancient Greece, and in its modern version, progress and/or evolution describes the progress (transmigration) of soul as it inhabits in succession the bodies of different beings over the course of thousands or even millions and billions of years.”

Review

“Since evolution implies continuous change, becoming, and/or progress, “Christian” heretics claim that immutable (unchanging) truths do not exist, therefore there is nothing immutable in the Bible or the Church....or for that matter in Americas’ Declaration of Independence, Constitution, Bill of Rights and Rule of Law.” The horror...!

“«Christian» change-agents further claim that all religions and belief systems are true because the satanic divine-force suffuses and energizes all things. By extension of this perverse reasoning, Gaia is alive, and Gnosticism, Satanism, Wicca, Theosophy, and Sharia are true.”

And the exposure of Satanism goes on and on in the same vein, until the author makes quite an unexpected disclosure, which came as a real surprise: it seems that Oprah Winfrey is a New Age High Priestess! But this is not all: “From the Royal Society (the national academy of science in the UK) and NASA, to the European Space Agency, the UN office for Outer Space Affairs, and to the Vatican’s progressive astronomers, excited discussions abound, all centered upon the existence of highly evolved Space Brothers (aliens) and their anticipated arrival here on earth. Lord Martin Rees, President of the Royal Society announced that aliens may be «staring us in the face» in a form unrecognizable to humans.” It turns out that all this time when good Christians like us were trying to engage a decent conversation, and maybe even a bit of honest communication, we were actually approaching the evolved Space Brothers (aliens), and the only thing they considered appropriate to do was to stare us in the face! Well, we’re doomed...